

May 2008 - Pictures from the Amani Development Center

The Windmill

View at the housing – front

View at the Housing – along the rear walk

The river after a downpour

On the Rock – at the rear of the housing - A grand view over the Center and the Great Valley

A rainstorm and an overflowing tank

The windmill at Mvumi Makulu – a string foundation

New Vines!

The windmill

Peanuts drying on the roof

View of part of the Vineyard

Maize on the drying rack

Sunflowers

The 'new' well keeper's house under construction/renovation at Mvumi makulu

In my garden!

Igondola Children's Project – Grade two in new uniforms

Dedicating a new village church site

Singing to the Lord

A teacher and children

A 'bounty' of paipai

Drip Irrigation from the traditional well

A boy who had a 'floppy foot'. Amani covered his surgery and follow-up treatment

Sunflowers – God's gift

I can stand up now!

At a village church – dressed in royal GoGo style.

Worship in a typical small GoGo style village church

An American in Paris – NO! Tanzania!

Baptising

A church choir singing on the front steps at the Center

The Music Man at a village Church

Books for Sunday School teachers – Lodge Village

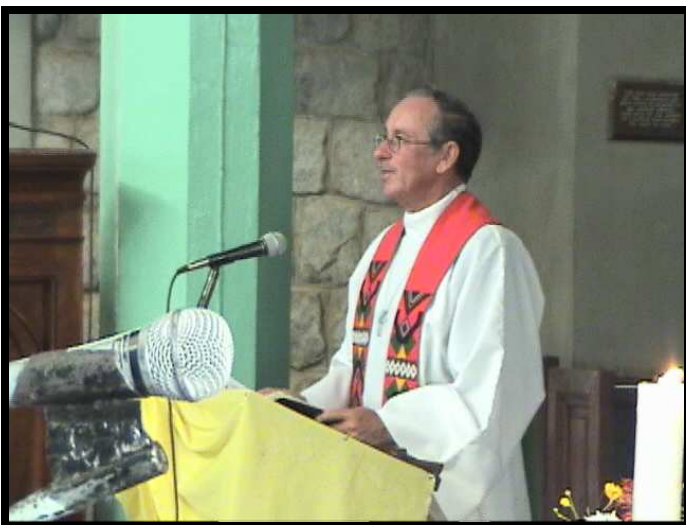

The early days at the Center – clearing the thorn bush

Celebrating Holy Communion at Lodge

The gift of work

Preaching in Dodoma Cathedral

Drip Irrigation

A snack along the way – walking home following a flat tire and no spare

I baptize you....

Still walking

Cooking Ugali for the workers

Prolific bananas

Nathanial Asbell and the beginning of the landscaping

Building the large shed at the Center

Colorful women – Visiting choir at the center

The tool room

Carrying rocks for the landscaping

Two happy lads at school

Greeting the teams – football

At the Cross. This young mother is partly sponsored at Msalato Bible College

More sunflowers

A splendid cloud formation

Partly completed 'home' = Children's Home Mahoma Makulu

Our Paipai

Some of the Mahoma Committee

Needing a new windmill. The old well the village has gifted to the Mahoma Children's Home

Some of the 'street children' cared for

Our new office in Ddoma – door far right